Grant Statement
Funding for the National Center of Excellence for Eating Disorders was made possible by Grant No. H79SM081924 from SAMHSA of the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS). The contents are those of the author(s) and do not necessarily represent the official views of, nor an endorsement by, SAMHSA/HHS, or the U.S. Government.
Welcome to this quarter’s edition of the NCEED newsletter! As always, we are excited to share with you the work we’ve been doing and highlight a little about what’s coming down the pipeline.

First, development of Screening, Brief Intervention, and Referral to Treatment for Eating Disorders (SBIRT-ED) is complete. NCEED is now in the process of identifying a high-quality vendor to build the digital tool. Once a vendor is selected and the tool is ready, NCEED will coordinate with SAMHSA and other health agencies to do a robust, nationwide launch. We appreciate your patience with this process and can’t wait to show you this first-of-its-kind tool.

It’s encouraging that SBIRT-ED continues to gain momentum at the federal level. The U.S. House recently passed legislation that requires all medical professionals to receive training on SBIRT-ED if they provide direct care to military members and their families. U.S. Representative Grace Meng (D-NY) championed this amendment to the defense authorization bill in recognition of the importance for healthcare providers to be educated in how to detect and manage eating disorders, particularly for service members and their families. We are thrilled about the passage of this amendment and are eager to collaborate with the Defense Health Agency to adapt SBIRT-ED for use with military populations.

In addition to the work being done on SBIRT-ED, NCEED updated its website with a new look and feel. It is reflective of our focus on educating healthcare providers about eating disorders. This new layout helps NCEED engage with its primary audience (i.e., healthcare providers), while allowing us to retain all of the important information for our other stakeholder groups, including individuals with lived experience and family members/loved ones. We also expanded our Resource Library and Training Center to include new products and webinars that can be accessed on demand. For example, we’ve created a toolkit with a variety of resources that are relevant to anyone providing care to those who have eating disorders. In this toolkit you’ll find items like a PCP Eating Disorder Checklist, infographics on eating disorders for use on social media, and past editions of the newsletter. We also added the full slate of 2021 webinars to the Training Center. If you missed a live presentation, you can now review the content at your convenience. Be sure to check out the website and access the toolkit as a one-stop shop for resources!

Lastly, we are thrilled to announce several important collaborations that allow NCEED to expand its reach. As part of this year’s strategic plan, we established formal collaborations with several of SAMHSA’s recently funded Centers of Excellence. These groups are focused on behavioral health disparities and include the African American Behavioral Health Center of Excellence, the LGBTQ+ Behavioral Health Equity Center of Excellence, and the National Family Support Technical Assistance Center. NCEED has also formally partnered with the Eating Disorders Coalition as they continue their important work in advancing policy for those affected by these conditions. We are confident that these collaborations allow NCEED to expand its reach and ensure we are meeting our mission of providing evidence-based education and training on eating disorders.

I encourage you to stay tuned via these newsletters and our social media to learn more about the upcoming collaborations and the roll out of SBIRT-ED. As always, we are so thankful for the work you do for our field. We remain open to any feedback, questions, or concerns you might have, so please feel free to be in touch with us at info@nceedus.org.

Best regards,
Christine M. Peat, PhD, FAED, LP
Director, National Center of Excellence for Eating Disorders
Associate Professor of Psychiatry, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill
Primary care providers typically receive very little training to screen for eating disorders. Despite that fact, they’re often the first or only point of contact with many patients who are affected by eating disorders.

NCEED developed a checklist to help providers understand signs and symptoms so patients can get the help they need.

Did You Know?

Download the PCP Eating Disorder Checklist

There are popular myths around eating disorders that are not accurate. NCEED created some infographics to educate and reorient people to the truths.

Find these and other valuable resources in NCEED’s Partner Toolkit.
Upcoming webinar on Eating Disorders in Primary Care: A Novel Tool for Screening and Referral

Date: Thursday, December 9, 2021
Time: 1:00pm – 2:00pm EST

Primary care providers (PCPs) are in a unique position to screen patients for eating disorders. Patients who do not display obvious signs or symptoms can be a particular challenge. To date, screening for these conditions has been challenging given the lack of specific strategies for primary care that fit the needs of a busy clinical practice.

This webinar offers practical, effective strategies that help you overcome these screening challenges. After viewing this webinar, you will be able to:

- List the advantages of screening for eating disorders in primary care
- Identify eating disorder-specific strategies for use in primary care
- Describe the SBIRT-ED tool and its use in clinical practice

Presenter
Christine Peat, PhD, FAED, LP
Director of the National Center of Excellence for Eating Disorders
Associate Professor of Psychiatry, UNC Chapel Hill

See Accreditation Details & Register Now
The NCEED team presented a successful series of CME-certified webinars in 2021. Each event offered evidence-based insights and tools to help primary care clinicians identify and treat eating disorders. If you missed any of this year’s webinars, they are still available on demand.

On-Demand WEBINARS

UNITE: Engaging Couples in the Treatment of Eating Disorders
Jennifer S. Kirby, PhD
Donald H. Baucom, PhD
REGISTER NOW

Assessing Growth in Children and Adolescents for the Screening, Treatment, and Prevention of Eating Disorders
Anna Lutz, MPH, RD/LDN, CEDRD-S
REGISTER NOW

Eating Disorders and Culture: Providing a Culturally Sensitive Treatment for Latinxs
Mae Lynn Reyes-Rodríguez, PhD, FAED
REGISTER NOW

Preservation of Oral Health in Eating Disorders: An Essential Guide for Health Professionals
Brittany Davis, DDS Candidate, Columbia University College of Dental Medicine
REGISTER NOW

Eating Disorders, Disordered Eating Behaviors, and Body Image in Athletes
Rachael Flatt, MA
REGISTER NOW

Shattering the Stereotypes: Improving our Understanding of Eating Disorders in Black Americans
Rachel W. Goode, PhD, MPH, LCSW
REGISTER NOW

Substance Use Among Individuals with Eating Disorders
Stephanie N. Ferrin, MD
REGISTER NOW

Lessons from History: The Minnesota Starvation Experiment
Tonya Foreman, MD
REGISTER NOW

Family-based Treatment for Eating Disorders: Compassion and Care through the Storm of Phase 1
Stephanie Zerwas, PhD
REGISTER NOW

Eating Disorders in Gender Diverse Youth: Guidance for Primary Care Providers
Martha Perry, MD
REGISTER NOW

Genetic Research in Eating Disorders: A Primer for Clinicians
Cynthia Bulik, PhD
REGISTER NOW
NCEED recently created a new video that highlights key national statistics on eating disorders. Primary care providers are frequently the first line of defense in the detection of eating disorders. It is important for them to screen all patients in their care.

In 2021, NCEED refreshed its website to create a more engaging narrative for primary care providers. NCEED worked with Charge Ahead Marketing and our web development partner, the 3C Institute, to collaborate on the redesign, which launched in October 2021. It includes new navigation, imagery, and more. The website also debuts a new theme that drives home the importance of screening for eating disorders: Make Decisions that Make a Difference. It aligns with NCEED's work to encourage primary care providers to screen all patients and make decisions on care that can save patients' lives. We encourage you to check out the site!
NCEED continues to work on the new SBIRT-ED platform, with the goal of introducing it to the field in 2022. The new tool allows primary care providers to efficiently screen for eating disorders. It serves as a guided screening tool and allows brief interventions to increase awareness and enhance motivation for treatment.

In the aftermath of the COVID-19 pandemic, various clinical departments have seen an increase in eating disorder diagnoses. This emphasizes the significant need for specific screening protocols and tools for frontline clinicians. The creation of SBIRT-ED brings us one step closer to filling this gap! The SBIRT-ED tool is completely free of charge for use within all clinical settings.

NCEED will share more information about SBIRT-ED when it is ready to launch.

Visit our website to sign up for our quarterly email newsletter. Each issue features the latest updates from our Leadership Team, and critical data surrounding eating disorders. You can also register for upcoming webinars.

Contact Our Team

We always look to partner with other organizations on education, content, awareness building, and more. Have ideas on how to collaborate? Let’s talk!

Christine M. Peat, PhD, FAED, LP
Director
christine_peat@med.unc.edu

Jean Doak, PhD
Deputy Director
jean_doak@med.unc.edu

La-Shell Johnson, MA
Program Coordinator la-shell_johnson@med.unc.edu

Courtenay Pierce, BA
Research Assistant
courtenay_pierce@med.unc.edu